

I & G Distributors USA brings the Patented RAU Animal Immobilizer to IDAHO

The RAU IM2000 Animal Immobilizer is revolutionizing large animal handling.

After many years of scientific research and practical on the ground use around the world and in the USA, this US Patented product has proven itself time and again through great results, to be among the most effective animal handling devices on the market.

A self contained, rechargeable, battery powered, portable electronic pulse generator combined with a simple to use rectal probe is what makes the RAU IM2000 Animal Immobilizer so effective and easy to use and operate.

Whilst the primary use of the IM 2000 Immobilizer is for electronic restraint of cattle during branding, dehorning, castration, hoof trimming and application of medical treatments it is finding more applications everyday including the field of artificial insemination and embryo work. With the use of the mini-probe (an additional accessory) the animal is sufficiently immobilized to quickly pass a straw of semen / embryo to inseminate or transfer. The Immobilizer has also been used successfully on horses, sheep, goats, hogs and other exotics such as buffalo, deer and elk.

The RAU IM200 Animal Immobilizer generates a low level electrical pulse which stimulates the animal's natural nervous system's response to motor muscle constriction, without affecting breathing, heart or other vital organs. As long as the pulse is applied the animal remains immobilized "frozen in place". That means no head-jerking while dehorning or doing head work and no kicking while castrating, branding or trimming hooves!

A very interesting and useful feature is that the immobilization is immediate when the pulse is applied – no waiting for drugs to take effect – and when the probe is removed or the pulse switched off, the animal immediately returns to normal with no after effects. The immobilization is not stressful to the animals and to date field trials have shown no negative effects, even on pregnant animals at any stage of pregnancy. This ensures that you can maintain the highest quality and safety standards for the herd.

"I & G Distributors USA, an importer and manufacturer of high quality veterinarian and farming products, brought this product to the US market some five years ago and is now bringing it to the Idaho marketplace. We feel that the IM 2000 Immobilizer is a crucial piece of equipment for any veterinarian or large animal handler that is concerned with their own and their animal's safety. I & G Distributors USA will be participating in the Idaho Cattleman's Convention Trade Show at Sun Valley on November 14-15th 2005 to introduce this revolutionary piece of equipment to the Idaho Cattlemen and to answer any questions that delegates may have, so make a point of visiting our booth, see video footage of this product in action and take advantage of the Trade Show special introductory offer pricing" says Ron Duckworth – Operations Manager.
